Official Statement of Policy Changes

As you all know, the past few years have been challenging for the clay target shooting industry. The covid-19 pandemic, inflation, and global supply chain issues have plagued businesses like ours and our customers. We have had to increase prices twice the past 2 years to cover the ever-increasing costs of operation and don't wish to do so again. Due to these factors, Buffer Creek needs to make some changes to how we operate in order to avoid further price increases. These changes are aimed to eliminate waste and allow us to operate more efficiently. The changes (effective April 1st, 2023) are as follows:

- Wireless remotes will be used in the “count-down” mode as opposed to “count-up”
- Targets will be prepaid before entering the course at the current rates
- Prepaid package holders will have targets subtracted from their package and added to the remote before shooting
- 10% of the number of targets purchased will be added to the remote count for no-throws and breakage
 - 100 Targets Purchased = 110 count on remote, 200 purchased = 220 count, etc.
 - A group of 4+ shooters will still have enough extras to throw show targets
- Once the remote count reaches zero, the customer must turn the remote in or purchase more targets to be added
- “Show targets” over the 10% rule will no longer be included in price for daily customers
- Large events will still utilize single station remotes and will include show targets in price

We hope that our customers understand the necessity for these changes. In the past, we've always included free “show targets” as a courtesy, but unfortunately this courtesy has become too costly for us to maintain. We also understand our machines are not perfect which is why we've decided to include the 10% for technical errors. As always, we at Buffer Creek like to be up front with any changes and hope that all of our customers are able to accommodate our need for change.
